

made by people from the Aran Islands ...

For centuries the people of Aran have used the precious resources of the islands to live and flourish. Passing down knowledge through the generations of how to maximise the benefits of these resources sustainably. Pictured is Barbara's beloved Dado (Grandfather) C oil n Fitzpatrick having harvested seaweed from the shore to spread on his land to give it nourishment.  alainn Skincare range is infused with this knowledge reaping the benefits of our lands, coastlines and seas for generations to come.

"Every resource is a precious gift and can not be taken for granted"

The Original Aran Island's Skin Care Range

Our Story: Niall Grannell grew up in Wexford, Ireland, on his family's 300-year-old farm, enjoying a farm-to-table lifestyle. Despite his deep connection to the land, he eventually pursued a maritime career, becoming a Captain in the merchant navy. During his travels, he met Barbara Fitzpatrick from Inis Mór who's family have lived for centuries on the Aran Islands and both shared a passion for natural skincare.

Following their passions, Niall became an Organic Skincare Formulator, drawing inspiration from the islanders' use of seaweed and botanicals. This led to the creation of Álainn Skincare, a brand dedicated to natural, organic, and handmade products. With Barbara's support, Álainn Skincare gained a reputation for sustainability and effectiveness, honouring the heritage of the Aran Islands and the natural beauty of the Islands coast and countryside.
